TSC FEATURED ON FRONT PAGE OF STAR TRIBUNE BUSINESS SECTION

MINNEAPOLIS, MN, June 14, 2010 – Star Tribune readers were reminded today of the importance of getting check-ups on a regular basis – for their 401(k) accounts, that is. In an article titled “Checking vital signs on employees’ 401(k)s,” Star Tribune reporter Todd Nelson featured Tax Sheltered Compensation (TSC) and the company’s president Gary Zurek. Zurek stressed the vital importance of knowing what kind of benefits 401(k) accounts will offer to individuals when they are ready to retire, and he explained how TSC helps businesses to evaluate their existing retirement plans.

The article reveals facts about TSC and the range of services that the company offers. Financial advisor Todd Swanson with John Hancock Financial Network and Thomsen & Nybeck law firm administrator Barbara Burke reflected on how the TSC 401(k) Health Check has helped them make the most of the retirement plans for their business. Zurek points out that it is not the 401(k)’s fault that the market dropped, and there are ways to make sure you are getting the most you possibly can out of your 401(k) account.

“If you don’t know what your target is, how are you ever going to hit it,” said Zurek in the article. “You need to have a goal, you need to know where you are going.” According to Zurek, a proposed bill in Congress would require that something similar to the Health Check would be mandated with benefit summaries.

Nelson reports that TSC is the largest independent retirement plan administration firm in the Upper Midwest...and the only one with two attorneys (on staff) who specialize in federal Employee Retirement Income Security Act (ERISA) issues.
